TO THE TRADE:

Recently our senior partner, G. A. McKee, attended the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen in Portland, Oregon, visiting many of the leading nurseries of that section, as well as at San Francisco and Los Angeles. They have the edge on us in the production of a greater variety of evergreens and plants in general, but we found that we have many points in common with the rose growers, not granting them any superiority nor taking any to ourselves.

We have the advantage of nearness to the Eastern and Southern markets and for the present, at least, cheaper prices, but this difference should be gradually overcome upon a strict consideration of quality and values.
